the project

ANFFAS ONLUS of Pordenone is an organisation addressed to people with different levels of disabilities however we also have experience of engaging young adults with social obstacles. Anffas is a national association having more than 180 sections all over Italy, each section is totally independent and can choose to run their own activities. In Pordenone it runs the Centre “Giulio Locatelli” which was opened in 1994. This Centre is a daily care service for 15 guests and a residential home for 20 guests, too. We add 3 emergency places for families who need a temporary break or support.

Anffas will offer 2 training places to trainees wishing to gain vocational skills in the field of disability, targeting young people without employment experience.

This is an example of a Leonardo Trainee weekly timetable:

Trainee profile:

- Strong interest in working with disable people;
- Open mind to other cultures;
- Respect the local community and others people you live with.

the project place Pordenone

Pordenone is a comune of Pordenone province of northeast Italy in the Friuli-Venezia Giulia region.

Pordenone was created in the High Middle Ages as a river port on the Noncello, with the name Portus Naonis. In the area, however, there were already villas and agricultural settlements in the Roman age.

Pordenone has been the primary host to the Giornate del cinema muto, a festival of silent film, since 1981, excepting an eight-year lapse after the host theater, Il Cinema Verdi, was torn down. The nearby town of Sacile hosted the festival from 1999 to 2006.

Pordenone railway station, opened in 1855, is located on the Venice–Udine railway. Although it is not a junction or terminal station, it is used by a great many passengers (3 million/year).
