Everything's possible after the Leeds Festival clear-up!!

LEEDS

Festival
REPUBLIC.

Every year after Leeds Festival, thousands of items of camping equipment are left behind by festival goers. This year in partnership with Festival Republic (the organisers of Leeds Festival) 'Everything's Possible', a not for profit organisation based in Leeds, will be responsible for helping to clear the festival site, reclaiming usable equipment which is in a good condition and redistributing it to local community groups at a very low cost.

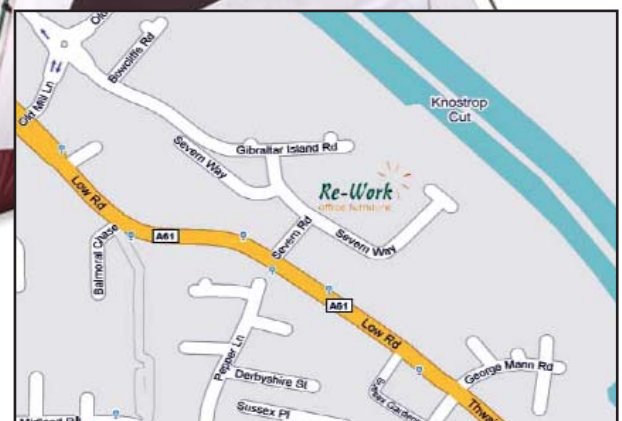

From September the 4th until the 6th Everything's Possible and one of our partner organisation at Re-Work (an ethical business reselling used office furniture) will offer this equipment to local community groups. During these dates, people can come and collect as much equipment as they need. For £25 a full carload or individual items for small donations, for example £1 for sleeping mats or camping chair to £5 for a tent, this money will be used to cover our costs of staffing the redistribution days.

The equipment we will be offering is expected to include sleeping bags (last year there were over 600!), tents of all sizes and sleeping mats, wellies, folding chairs, small camping and cooking equipment, torches, stoves, picnic-ware etc. Festival Republic, Everything's Possible and Re-work are committed to reducing waste and redistributing equipment to organisations in need of it rather than sentencing quality usable equipment to landfill. Set up in 1999, Everything's Possible aims to offer people aged 16-30 the chance to travel abroad on international mobility projects for free. We offer diverse experiences especially to those who may have little or no chance to travel. Working within the EVS (European Voluntary Service) and Leonardo da Vinci both funded by the European Commission, we aim to broaden young peoples' horizons and allow them to see the world.

Re-work office furniture is a community interest company which wants to ensure that good quality office furniture are re-used, re-cycled and passed on at a low cost to charities, community groups, schools and starting small businesses.

If you or your organisation or group are interested in getting your hands on some good quality camping equipment, you can visit Re-work office furniture during the following dates.

Friday 4th September	10.00 - 17.00
Saturday 5th September	10.00 - 17.00
